THE FIRST DECISION

The Commission's Finding Affecting Wages Will Begin Nov. 1.

INSPECTING MINES.

On Pressure of the Workers the Commission Visits the Worst Mine About Scranton and See the Way the Miners Live.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 31.—The anthracite commission officially decided if any change is made in the wages of the men, it shall date from Nov. 1. This announcement was made by the commission through Recorder Wright in the following brief statement given out by him:

"It was voted unanimously that if the commission at the conclusion of its hearing and deliberations makes any award affecting the existing rate of wages, such award will take effect from Nov. 1, 1902."

The recorder stated this resolution was adopted by the commission because it was felt it was important and it might be well, in order to relieve itself from pressure from any source which might cause undue haste, to inform operators and miners, should the investigation and deliberation following it warrant any change whatever, either in the way of increase or reduction of wages, such change would be from a certain date, thus enabling all parties to facilitate calculations. The action of the commission in taking this step at this time will save the commissioners a lot of time. It is known that each side to the controversy would take a determined stand on this question when they knew when the rate of wages, if one is made, would go into effect. The operators in their original proposition to President Roosevelt wanted the commission to fix the date, and the miners wanted it placed at Oct. 23.

Members of the party were up early and ready for another hard day's work. They left the hotel soon after the arrival of Commissioner Watkins, whose home is at Scranton. Mr. Watkins, owing to his intimate knowledge of the mining in this region, is the guiding spirit of the party. He has general charge of the tour. In this he is assisted by the superintendents of the companies located in this vicinity and also by District President Nicholls of the miners' union.

Manville mine was inspected. It is operated jointly by the Delaware and Hudson and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western companies. The mine is one of the worst for miners in this territory. The veins are small and there is barely room enough for the men to stand up. This colliery was visited at the suggestion of mine workers' representatives.

Important Mining Venture.

Pittsburg, Oct. 31.—Work has started on the most important mining venture in western Pennsylvania. Guffey & McQueen, well-known oil producers, associated with the old Carnegie Steel company, were interested and formed the Great Lakes Coal company, with $5,000,000 capital, acquired 25,000 acres of coal land near Brady's Bend, have begun opening ten large mines and will open five more, giving them a daily output of 12,000 tons.

Other Mines Giving Way.

Joplin, Mo., Oct. 31.—The Prosperity mine cave-in is assuming big proportions. In addition to seven shafts on the eleventh hour tract that were utterly destroyed, Homestead and Cleveland mines have caved in. The ruined mines were all producers and have paid a half million dollars in dividends. Five other mines in the immediate vicinity are considered unsafe and have been abandoned.

President Visits Virginia.

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretaries Root, Cortelyou and Surgeon General Rixey of the navy, left tonight on a special train for Manassas, Va. It is the desire of the president in taking the trip to get a day or two of recreation. He will spend some time in looking over some of the Virginia battle fields in the vicinity of Manassas.

Delegate Bersch Convicted.

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—Edmund Bersch, former member of the house of delegates was found guilty of perjury in his testimony before the grand jury as to the $75,000 boodle fund raised to secure the passage of the suburban franchise bill and was given five years in the penitentiary.

Successful Race Meeting.

Memphis, Nov. 1.—The fall meeting of the Memphis Trotting association closed Thursday and its success has been remarkable. The attendance has been large, the weather favorable and the condition of the track is best evidenced by the fact that several new world's marks have been registered by the timers.

Santa Maria Volcano Doing Great Damage in Guatemala.

TOWNS THREATENED

Quesaltenango Covered to the Depth of Six Inches With Ashes and Coffee Lands Have Been Wiped Out by the Eruption.

Washington, Oct. 31.—A cablegram received at the state department from Consul General McNally reports that the eruption of the volcano at Santa Maria adjoining Quesaltenango continues and that the city is covered with six inches of volcanic matter. Rich coffee plantations on the coast are buried under seven feet of sand and ashes from the volcano. Detonations from the eruption were heard in the capital. There have been frequent earthquakes and other eruptions are reported in the department of Tomador. Much excitement prevails.

DESTRUCTION GREAT.

The Coffee Zone About Santa Maria Entirely Destroyed.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—The entire coffee zone of Guatemala has been destroyed by the flames, ashes and smoke from the volcano of Santa Maria. Eruptions threatened the destruction of every living thing within reach of the fumes, and the fire pours from the burning mountain, according to a cablegram to Castle Bros., importers of this city, received from their coffee plantation in Guatemala. Only meager details are given.

"Last Monday," said Louis Hirsch, of Castle Bros., "I wired to our representatives there, asking for news of the eruption of Santa Maria, and I have received in reply this cablegram: 'It is true; enormous losses. Probable volcanic eruption. Coffee zone destroyed. Our lives are in danger. Further reports will follow.'"

"The coffee districts referred to," said Mr. Hirsch, "are the Costa Cuca and Costa Granda. They are the finest plantations in the country. If the coffee district is destroyed, as the cable seems to indicate, one-third of the crop is most likely involved."

"The volcano of Santa Maria is located between Retalhulen and Quesaltenango. The towns in the neighborhood most likely to be destroyed are San Felipe, Mazatenango and Quesaltenango. The volcano has been quiet for years."

NOT MUCH DAMAGE.

Reports Conflicting as to the Destruction Wrought by Santa Maria.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—Phillipe Gallacia, consul at San Francisco for Bolivia and Guatemala, has received from the president of Guatemala the following telegram relating to the eruption of the volcano at Santa Maria:

"It is true the volcano is in eruption, but without any damage."

A message from the superintendent of the Ocos railroad states that the volcano has been in continuous eruption since October 24, and ashes to the depth of twelve inches have fallen at the terminus of the line. News from points further inland are anxiously awaited.

Officers of the Pacific steamer Colon, which has arrived here, state that when the vessel was lying in the port of Acajutlan, San Salvador, on Oct. 26, there was a sudden and violent eruption of the volcano of Isolco, twenty miles in the interior of San Salvador, and great excitement was occasioned among the peon classes. From the city and port a great cloud of black smoke was seen to shoot up to a great height from Isolco's peak, whence neither smoke nor fire had come for five or six months. Natives when they saw the eruption anticipated earthquakes and tidal waves, but within an hour the big black cap on Isolco had drifted away and the volcano was again apparently quiet.

Political Riots in San Juan.

San Juan, Oct. 31.—Political rioting at Ponce was renewed Wednesday evening. From 9 to 11 o'clock the city was in the hands of a Republican mob, alleged to have been aided by the municipal police. The Federal club was fired on. One man was killed and several were badly wounded.

Violation of Local Option.

Waxahachie, Tex., Oct. 31.—The first arrest for violating the local option law recently adopted here was made here Thursday. The defendant was caught in what is known as bootlegging whisky while the big crowd attending a circus was in town.

New Spanish Minister Received.

City of Mexico, Oct. 31.—General Carlos Velez, the first minister of Mexico from the Republic of Cuba, was received by President Diaz at noon Thursday in the splendid hall of ambassadors. There was a large attendance of distinguished visitors.

WILSON & JENKINS.

THE DAILY EAGLE.

Entered at the postoffice as second Class mail matter.

BY CONNELLY & CARNES.

Per Week, 15c. - Per Month, 40c.

The Fort Worth division of the I. & G. N. will be completed in a few days.

Ex-President Cleveland has taken the stump for the congressional candidates in New Jersey, tariff reform being his slogan.

Chairman Babcock's estimate of the republican majority in congress has dropped from 45 to 12. The democrats hope to wipe it out entirely next Tuesday.

The president is going to make another southern tour, and will probably visit Tuskegee. It is understood that Booker Washington has set his 'possum traps.

The president has designated Thursday, Nov. 27, as Thanksgiving day. The proclamation is decidedly strenuous, but makes no reference to the coal strike.

On the eve of the election some effort is being made in the centers of population to defeat the poll tax amendment by exciting class prejudice. The question is a very plain one, however. The adoption of the amendment means every man must contribute to the support of the government, more money for the free schools and purer politics.

Irrigation For General Purposes.

The success which has followed the irrigation of rice in both Louisiana and Texas, is gradually leading the public mind to a point where the farmer is wondering if he could not properly apply the system to the growth of other crops. The discovery that the prairies of the coast country are located over inexhaustible stratas of fine fresh water has, or at least will in a measure, emancipate the small rice grower from the necessity of purchasing his water supply from the canal companies. The complete success of the individual well system has already caused the establishment of shallow wells throughout the rice belt and one 6-inch well will supply sufficient water to irrigate one hundred acres of rice. To do this it must flow or pump over a million gallons of water daily, and do so for not less than three months.

The query naturally goes forth, that if rice can be grown by irrigation why cannot corn, cotton, oats, potatoes, etc., be raised under like conditions, the only difference being that the weight of argument is with the farmer of diversified products because he need only irrigate when his crop demands moisture. The small well irrigation system has been applied to the growing of garden truck in and about Beeville with marked success, and the time has arrived when the farmer, other than the rice grower, should avail himself of the opportunities offered for profitable cultivation by making use of the great water supply Providence has located easily within reach of a moderate pumping plant, and this expense even the small grower may undergo in view of the revolution it would make in his methods.—Literary Bureau Southern Pacific.

Root Speaks at New York.

New York, Oct. 31.—Cooper Union was filled Thursday night with people who had come to attend a Republican meeting, the principal speaker being Mayor Low, Governor Odell and Secretary of War Root. Mr. Low eulogized Governor Odell and his administration of state affairs. Governor Odell followed in an address in which he cast aside as absurd the prediction that his majority would be as small as some had prophesied. Secretary Root spoke on national affairs.

Cleveland Makes Political Speeches.

Morristown, N. J., Nov. 1.—Former President Cleveland spoke here Thursday to a political meeting held in Lyceum hall. Special trains brought hundreds of people from other cities and towns in this vicinity and Mr. Cleveland was given an ovation.

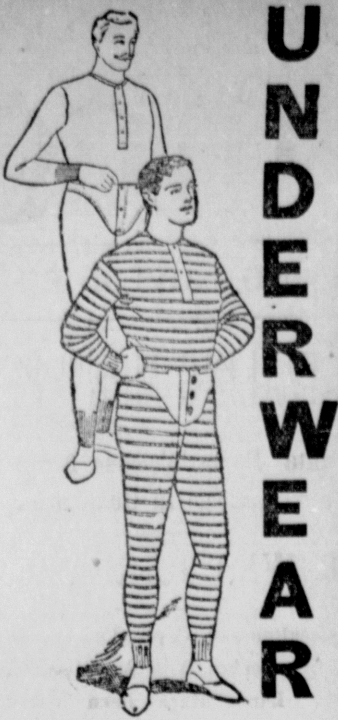

Following the meeting there was a non-partisan reception to Mr. Cleveland at which about 200 prominent residents of this city were present.

Died from a Fall.

Mexia, Tex., Oct. 31.—Mrs. H. M. Munger, Sr., died at her home in this city from the effects of a fall that she received last Sunday evening from the gallery, in which her shoulder was broken. She was the mother of Bob and Steve Munger, the cotton gin men of Birmingham, Ala., and also leaves four other children—H. M. Munger, Jr., Mrs. J. R. Teague and Mrs. J. M. Long of this city and Mrs. John Means of Shreveport.

Six Firemen Hurt.

Minneapolis, Oct. 31.—Six firemen were injured in a fire here that caused a damage estimated at $250,000. The six-story building occupied by the Minneapolis Paper company and owned by J. S. Oswald & Co., was gutted. The stock of the paper company, known as Wright, Barrett & Stillwell, was consumed. The contents are said to have exceeded $200,000 in value.

HUNTER & ...CHATHAM.

CUBA IS FOREIGN.

Decision That Makes it a Republic Since Spanish Evacuation.

New York, Oct. 31.—A decision which was interpreted as signifying that the island of Cuba was a "foreign country," as understood by the United States constitution, from the time of the evacuation of the island by the Spaniards up to the establishment of the new republic, has been handed down by United States Judge Edward B. Thomas of Brooklyn. The judge holds, therefore, that all crimes committed in Cuba during the military rule of the United States on the island are subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of the republic of Cuba.

The law department in Washington will receive a copy of the decision, which is the outcome of the case of Jose Assia, a sailor on the ship Poloma, charged with killing John Orlin, while the vessel was cruising in the waters about Hayti last July. Owing to a rebellion in Hayti at the time, there was no established form of law. The Poloma, however, being registered as a Cuban ship, under the military government of Governor General Wood. In addition the Poloma sailed under the American flag and her ownership was vested in Americans residing in New York city. All these things brought up the question whether the Poloma was brought to be considered an American or a Cuban ship and whether the prisoner was subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of Cuba or of the United States. The ship was regarded as an extension of Cuban soil, thus complicating the matter.

NOT SO CRITICAL.

Cholera Situation in the Philippines Being Much Improved.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Anxious inquiries about the cholera situation in the Philippines from relatives and friends of Americans now in the islands indicate undue alarm which is not borne out by the information received by the bureau of insular affairs. A cable received Thursday from Gov. Taft states that the cholera has practically disappeared from the island of Luzon and that in Manila there only have been an average of two cases a day during the last ten days. In all, twenty provinces are now about free from cholera. Only five provinces are now seriously affected, the provinces of Iloilo, Occidental Negros, Capiz, Samar and Misamis.

The percentage of mortality which in the beginning reached 90 per cent, has been greatly reduced and is now generally below 50 per cent. The commissioner of public health for the archipelago states that Cebu has already been declared a clean port and that Manila will be so declared on the first of November.

SENTENCE COMMUTED.

President Changes Hotema's Death Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The president has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence pronounced upon Solomon Hotema, convicted in the Eastern district of Texas of murder committed in the Indian Territory on Nov. 29, 1901.

It appears that a short time before the murder he lost, by death, several children in rapid succession and believing in witches and witchcraft, he conceived the idea that certain persons who he believed to be witches were responsible. On the morning of the murder, being more or less under the influence of liquor, he started out with the expressed intention of killing certain persons, whom he declared to be witches. He first went to the house of Vina Coleman, an Indian woman for whose murder he stands convicted. It appears that this woman was related to him, that he had always been on most friendly terms with her. He accused her of being a witch and shot her to death with a shotgun at the same time wounding a small child. Then he shot and badly wounded a 15-year-old boy. He thereupon mounted his horse and proceeded to the home of a man whom he accused of being a witch and shot him to death. He then proceeded to another house and killed another woman whom he accused of being a witch. He was tried for the killing of the last two persons and acquitted on the ground of insanity, but was condemned to die for the first murder.

SUIT FOR LIBEL.

General Bell Seeks Damages from Newspaper at Manila.

Manila, Oct. 31.—Libel proceedings have been instituted against the editors and proprietors of Libertas, a Spanish newspaper published in Manila, on account of the publication of an article attacking General J. Franklin Bell and his plan of aiding the people of Batangas and La Guna and of the island of Mindano. This plan consisted of selling rice and supplying the people with seeds and farming implements and it resulted in profits amounting to $27,000 gold.

General Bell has recently been ordered home and Libertas published an article charging General Bell with an attempt to steal this fund and take it with him to the United States, but saying the commission had forced him to surrender the money. General Davis transmitted to the general officially a copy of Libertas' article. General Bell responded by denying the charges. General Davis thereupon transmitted the papers to Governor Taft and the prosecuting attorney instituted the proceedings against the newspaper.

INJUNCTION REFUSED.

Officers Have Right to Drive Cattle Out of the Territory.

Muskogee, I. T., Oct. 31.—At Durant Judge Clayton refused an injunction restraining Revenue Inspector Cobb from driving out of the Territory cattle brought in for grazing purposes upon which the owners refused to pay a tax of 25c per head, as per regulations of the department.

Cobb had been in the Chickasaw nation and had driven five herds of cattle out of the territory across Red river into Texas.

W. O. Davis, representing cow men who have 100,000 head of cattle subject to this tax, filed an injunction to prevent their removal and the injunction was denied.

Cobb will go back to the Chickasaw nation next week to remove more cattle. If owners of cattle once removed bring them back the penalty is $1 per day for each head. This has occurred and Cobb has sued such cattle owners to force payment of the fine.

EDUCATED INDIANS.

They Are Worthless Spendthrifts and Will Not Work.

Washington, Oct. 31.—A severe arraignment of the Indians on Ponca, Oto and Oakland reservation in Oklahoma is made by Agent Erwin in charge of the reservation in his annual report to the commissioner of Indian affairs.

The report says: "Hardly any of the young Indians those who have graduated from reservation schools, as well as those who have attended for a number years, do any work at all. It can be set down as a perfectly safe rule that as a class the young educated Indians are the most worthless ones in the whole tribe. Nearly all the work done by the tribes are performed by the middle-aged, able bodied ones who can not write or can speak English. In Indians coming from the schools usually gives the excuse that he has nothing with which to work, money, implements nor stock of any kind. This is true, but I notice that they manage to live on their annuities and lease money and buy horses, buggies, etc., on credit and borrow money from banks with very little prospect of ever being able to pay their debts. Any able-bodied man or woman is able to obtain work at fair wages. Many are addicted to drink and both men and women are inveterate gamblers. They have practically nothing to do. Their days are spent in almost utter idleness and vice and debauchery are rampant. Degradation of these people will continue and increase until they are made to work and live by the result of their labor."

As remedy of this condition of affairs the agent recommended that Indian children be educated only at reservation boarding schools, as further education being 90 per cent waste of effort and money; that schools under the jurisdiction of the Oklahoma government be established among these Indians so that the latter can come into constant contact with white children and that payments by the government from their trust funds now in the United States treasury be used to enable them to start in farming and stock raising.

KILLED TWO MEN.

Tennessee Saloon-keeper Slays Cooley and His Son-in-Law.

Dayton, Tenn., Oct. 31.—A tragedy occurred here Thursday night resulting in the killing of N. J. Cooley and his son-in-law, Will Whitfield, by Manuel Thurman, a saloon keeper. Whitfield was shot three times and died immediately, but Cooley lingered until he made a statement. A New Leader And New Army

[Copyright, 1902, by G. L. Kilmer.]

CT. 30, 1862, General W. S. Rosecrans took command of the Federal forces in Kentucky. The event was the creation of a new army under a new leader. Officially the order placing Rosecrans in the shoes of Don Carlos Buell simply established the department of the Cumberland, a military district comprising east Tennessee and the ground within the Confederate states of Alabama and Georgia yet to be captured.

The official order from the war department designated Rosecrans' force the Fourteenth corps, but the command became quickly famous as the Army of the Cumberland. The new leader at once set his columns in motion to Nashville, which was the base of Federal supplies when the troops were operating in Tennessee. The Confederates had their eyes upon the recapture of Nashville.

The Confederates of the west had never recovered from the chagrin they felt over the abandonment of Nashville by the army after Grant's victory at Donelson in February, 1862. Nashville was the key to Tennessee and southern Kentucky. It was in the hope of recovering that point that General Albert Sidney Johnston took desperate chances in attacking Grant at Shiloh, almost at the borders of Mississippi. He expected to smash Grant and send him flying back to the Ohio river and clear the road for his men in gray to march back to Nashville. That plan failed, and the next move was begun by Bragg in midsummer, 1862, when he started from Chattanooga and pushed his way rapidly to the Ohio, drawing Buell and a large part of Grant's Corinth army northward to head him off from Louisville and Cincinnati.

Falling in his object to get a foothold in Kentucky, Bragg retraced his steps to Tennessee in October, planted his army at Murfreesboro and dispatched a force to capture Nashville, then held by a small Federal garrison. But Rosecrans came to the field full of fight and rushed his advance columns across the Kentucky border to Nashville. The fresh troops reached the scene in time to repulse a strong attack by Confederate infantry supported by Forrest's cavalry. This affair was the chief incident of the so called siege of Nashville, in so far as the main line of defense was concerned.

But the Confederates didn't rest with simply a show of strength in front of the Nashville defenses. With Nashville as a base the Federals relied upon railway communications with Louisville, and upon these the southern cavalry made numerous raids. The noted John H. Morgan dashed upon the post at Hartsville, Tenn., one night and captured a whole Federal brigade. At the same time Joe Wheeler raided the territory west of the line. But in spite of raids and forays in the rear Rosecrans opened the road to Louisville and kept it open, meanwhile reorganizing his new army for an attack upon Bragg's principal camp.

The Army of the Cumberland as it came into Rosecrans' hands was a motley mass of troops. In the scare of Bragg's invasion new regiments in the camps in Ohio and Kentucky had been rushed to the front to fill in veteran brigades. There was a nucleus of old troops that had been with Buell at Shiloh, but divisions and brigades had been changed, old leaders had been lost in battle, and the army which had fallen back in haste across Tennessee to the center of Kentucky in the face of advancing Confederates and fought heroically without scoring a great victory at Perryville needed reorganization before it could go forward to attack a foe in his chosen stronghold.

Rosecrans came to his new army and new enterprise fresh from a great triumph at Corinth Oct. 3 and 4. In repulsing the Confederates under Earl Van Dorn and Sterling Price, Rosecrans had probably saved the fruits of Donelson and Shiloh in the west. When Corinth was fought, Grant was tied up there with a large army, while Buell was confronted in Kentucky with a large force of Confederates under Bragg. Bragg wanted help in his campaign, and Van Dorn and Price were the only hope. If they could smash the army at Corinth and break up Grant's reserve at Memphis, there would be no hope of getting re-enforcements to Buell. The defeat of Van Dorn left Bragg alone on unfriendly soil, for the Kentuckians didn't rise to welcome his invasion.

So it was not one of those accidents of choice which often work mischief which placed Rosecrans in the saddle at the head of the biggest army in the west. A leader was needed, and Grant had done nothing of account since Shiloh. It was even talked of in Washington to place Rosecrans at the head of the Army of the Potomac in the shoes of "Little Mac," who had fallen into disfavor for not pushing the campaign in Virginia after Antietam. But the experiment of importing a western general to the east had failed in the case of John Pope, whose disastrous campaign at Manassas had cast a gloom over the country. So the choice for a new head on the Potomac fell to Burnside, who had won laurels in North Carolina and had also fought with the Army of the Potomac at South

Mountain and Antietam, and Rosecrans stayed in the west.

Rosecrans was a man for a western leader. His men christened him "Old Rosy," and he was a soldier, after their own heart. A ready fighter, impulsive and democratic, the troops readily adopted him as a hero. When he first rode along the lines at Nashville, the soldiers gave the new leader an enthusiastic welcome in their usual hearty and informal way, shouting "Hurrah for Old Rosy! We'll give it to Bragg now!" Rosecrans responded in an equally informal way. Said he: "All right, boys. Bragg is a good dog, but Holdfast is a better." At that the men cheered, and his speech became the keynote for the hard times ahead.

A few days later Rosecrans rode out to the rear, where the enemy was threatening to raid his communications with Louisville. Coming to a ford over the Cumberland, which was very important, he said to the officer in command of the guard, "Colonel, can you hold this ford?"

"I can try, sir," was the response.

"Colonel, can you hold this ford?" repeated the chief warmly.

"I will die before I give it up, sir."

"Colonel, can you hold this ford?" persisted the general sharply.

"Yes, sir."

"That will do," said Rosecrans and went his way along the lines.

Rosecrans organized his army for a fighting machine. The post of honor in the center was given to Thomas, an act of prescience, it might seem, but really only a stroke of good judgment. Thomas had not done very much fighting because he hadn't had a chance, but his face showed that he was the man to stand like a rock in battle. The wisdom of the choice was quickly proved, for on two critical occasions the center under the stubborn old warrior saved the day for Rosecrans.

The right wing of the army was given to General Alexander McDowell McCook, a brilliant but unlucky fighter. McCook had won laurels at Shiloh and in numerous other affairs, but his corps was involved in the disaster at Perryville the 8th of October. The ill fortune at Perryville was not due to McCook's blunder, but to battlefield luck, and it was only fair to the gallant soldier to give him another chance in command of a wing of the army. McCook's brother, General Robert L. McCook, had been killed during the Kentucky invasion, and his uncle and father, together with several brothers and cousins, were serving in the Federal camps.

For leader of the left wing Rosecrans chose General Thomas L. Crittenden, the noted Kentuckian. Among his own people Crittenden was known as Tom, for the family was large and sent out more than one soldier. General George B. Crittenden, a younger brother of Tom, went with the south, and it was his army which Thomas defeated at Mill Springs, Ky., in January, 1862. Like McCook, Tom Crittenden had fought at Shiloh and earned his spurs as a commander of troops.

One of the division officers in the new army was an experiment as a leader of infantry troops. This was Phil Sheridan, who had seen the edge of the battle at Perryville, but little more. Sheridan had been in the field only a few months. His first command was a regiment of cavalry stationed on Grant's outposts in Mississippi, beyond Corinth, and his first affair at arms not more than a skirmish. One day the Confederates attacked Sheridan's line at Rienzi, and he made such a brilliant fight that word was sent to Washington that he ought to be given a brigade. "He is worth his weight in gold," the dispatch said. He was given a division of infantry and did his first hard fighting in the Army of the Cumberland under Rosecrans. That army in the fall of 1862 set its face southward, never to turn back until it had recovered Tennessee and conquered Georgia.
